

More Information on HIV Disclosure

This resource is part of a broader toolkit about women and HIV disclosure created for people who work with women who are or may be living with HIV. The term 'disclosure' in this toolkit refers to sharing someone's HIV positive status without consent in the context of community or social support roles. This section of the toolkit is dedicated to the many places you can look for more information. Knowing where to find more useful resources is important in your work to support women who may disclose their HIV status and can help you to be knowledgeable about how to navigate disclosure in a way that supports women and builds positive outcomes.
